Our library personnel believe in the principle of customer service first.

Stop by and pick up a copy of one of our recent subject bibliographies, or let us help you navigate the world of Internet research. Questions or comments about our library facilities, services or procedures are always welcome. If we fail to live up to your service expectations please let us know. ## Faces in the Law Library

Janice Cox

Janice is the account clerk for the law library and has worked in that capacity since she started in August 1977. She is responsible for invoice processing, acquisitions processing and budget reports relating to the book budget and student wage budgets for the library. She has seen much growth and many changes in the law library over the years and remembers when the main entrance was through the double doors leading off the courtroom lobby and the circulation desk was roughly in the area her office is in now.

Besides the law library, she has also worked in several different departments and colleges at UK. She has worked at the Medical Center in financial affairs, the College of Agriculture assisting a professor with a special weather research project, at the Computing Center and also did a stint in the old Office of Business Affairs (now called the Controller's Office) where she was an assistant supervisor. She also spent several years in the private sector working in the home office of Kentucky Finance Company and later its subsidiary KFC Data Center, both as a data entry operator and computer operator. She is a 1977 graduate of Lexington Community College with an associates degree in Accounting Technology.

Janice was born in Hamilton, Ohio, a small town north of Cincinnati, grew up in the Bradenton-Sarasota, Florida area, and moved to Lexington in 1963. She has been married to her husband Sam for almost 31 years. They are currently sharing their home with two canine members, Venture, a Vizsla and Kappy, a Bichon Friese. Her avocation is dog training and dog events, in fact, anything to do with dogs, and she spent much time doing therapy visits to hospitals and nursing homes with her now departed Schnauzer, Rudie. There will soon be a new addition to the Cox household, an English Springer Spaniel female puppy named Keswicke Seventh Heaven, call name of Gemma, who she will co-own with the breeder and hopefully show to her championship. When not at dog shows she can be found at Herrington Lake at her house float enjoying the fishing and just plain relaxing, usually with a niece or nephew in tow. In her spare time (ha!) she is also a voracious reader.

"X" Marks the Web Site: X Files Pages on the World Wide Web

So what did you do on your summer vacation? Did many of you see the X Files movie? For those of you, whether X "phile" or "phobe", who missed the movie but don't have the time now to view the whole thing, check out this web site for a transcript of the movie, and any episodes you may have missed: <http://www.nelsonbay.com/insanity/tiny/xfscript.html>

X Files web pages raise many interesting questions of intellectual property law. For a bitter X Philer's comments upon being shut down by the Fox legal machinery, see <http://www.stack.nl/~danny/home/in dex.htm> For an example of a threatening demand letter written by one of the Fox attorneys, see <http://www.sci.fi/~katsku/xletter.htm> For those wishing to view the Fox party line, take a look at their "official" X Files home page: <http://www.thex-files.com/> Fox even has an official website just for the movie: <http://www.fightthefuture.com/>

Don't know where to start on your tour of The X Files on the web? Try starting with Krycek's X Files page, <http://www.geocities.com/Area51/6270/>, from which you may launch into an international X Files "web ring". The Krycek page also offers a weekly sampling of X Files trivia for all of you true X Philes.

For any of you who can't quite get beyond undergraduate fraternity antics, there are numerous X Files drinking game pages. For an example check out this one: <http://members.aol.com/onejaguar/xfiles/index.html>. Those of us who pass on playing the alcohol version of the game will just sit back and think up novel strategies to hold the page's creators liable for all the drunken injuries caused as a result of these games.

If you still can't get enough of the X Files on the web, Yahoo has a cite listing hundreds of X Files references on the web: http://www.yahoo.com/News\_and\_Media/Television/Shows/Science\_Fiction\_Fantasy\_and\_Horror/X\_Files\_The/

Have fun with the legal and metaphysical issues raised by these pages, and watch for more fun web sites in future issues of Tort & Sweet.

AALL in Anaheim

Sue Burch and Herb Cihak

The Ninety-First Annual American Association of Law Libraries meeting was held in Anaheim, California, July 11-16. Library members, Herb Cihak, Sue Burch, Shaun Esposito, Gloria Kennedy, Carol Parris and Dee Wood attended the Conference.

The theme this year was New Horizons - Law Librarians: Constant Learning and Adapting to Ever-Changing Realities. The programs reflected the many kinds of changes and challenges we face each day - evolving technology, new personnel and organizational structures, as well as vendor relations and our constant quest for customer satisfaction. The conference planners rearranged the format and scheduling by presenting daily keynote speakers, varied lengths of programs, and began the conference on Sunday.

Herb Cihak and Sue Burch made a presentation which won the award for the "best management" program proposal, Leadership, Liberation, and Law Librarians: What's on the Horizon? Their program focused on how the University of Kentucky Law Library reorganized its structure and liberated its staff in order to meet the challenges of customer service and new technology.

Besides attending many insightful and dynamic programs, library members also found time to visit local beaches, presidential libraries, and, of course, Disneyland.

The group is already looking forward to next year's conference in Washington, D.C.

Kentucky State Law Libraries Meet

The Law Library of the Louis D. Brandeis School of Law, University of Louisville hosted the 10th annual meeting of the Kentucky State Law Libraries on August 7, 1998. Representing the UK College of Law Library were Donna Bruszewski, Sue Burch, Herb Cihak, Janice Cox, Shaun Esposito, Sharon Harrod, Amy Osborne, Emily Raney, and Dee Wood.

A day full of learning and networking activities, including a delicious breakfast at the Law School and buffet lunch at the University Club, was enjoyed by everyone. During the morning hours, attendees were treated to a presentation by Robin Harris on

"Kentucky's Early Women Lawyers," a demonstration of their new Online Public Catalog, Voyager's Minerva 2000, followed by breakout sessions.

Highlighting the afternoon agenda was a tour of the Filson Club Historical Society and Museum. The Filson Club, established in 1884, is committed to collecting and preserving Kentucky's history, making the materials and information available to stimulate a public interest in Kentucky's rich heritage. The tour was the final activity of the day, but the group was reluctant to leave after viewing the Filson Club's fascinating collections.

Hats off to U of L Law Library staff for sharing their wonderful resources, food, and all around atmosphere of good fellowship with the State Law Libraries of Kentucky. See you next year!

SEAALL@NewOrleans. 98

March 12-14 marked the 1998 conference of the Southeastern Chapter of the American Association of Law Libraries in New Orleans, Louisiana. Library team members in attendance were Sue Burch, Herb Cihak, Sharon Harrod, Amy Osborne, Carol Parris, Ebba Jo Sexton, and Dee Wood.

Program planners (Sue Burch, Chair) carefully blended the past, present, and future of law librarianship with the Crescent City's local attractions, art, music, cuisine, and history. Herb Cihak and Janet Stith (UK Medical Center Library) made an excellent program presentation titled Medical and Legal Libraries: Organizational Partnering & Reconstruction. Amy Osborne was part of a panel presentation titled Training, Teaching and Whatever Happened to Reference? In addition to UK program participants, Ben Cowgill, attorney for Woodward, Hobson & Fulton, Lexington, KY., presented Technology, the Library & the MIS Department.

Dee, Carol and Sharon

Artful programming, colorful activities, and perfect weather in combination made the conference a great success. The next annual meeting will be held in Knoxville, Tennessee, April 1999.

Restaurant Guide

By now everyone is back into their routine and the semester is in full swing. For the new 1L's this means tackling the conundrum of criminal law and the tribulation of torts. But, everyone has to take time to eat and so in that regard we thought we would give you our choices for some of the better restaurants in Lexington.

ITALIAN

Joe Bologna's - 120 W Maxwell Street

Best known for their delicious bread sticks, Joe Bologna's is a long time campus mainstay. Great for lunch or dinner the entire restaurant has recently become a smoke-free environment. The building is also interesting as it used to be the temple in downtown Lexington.

VEGETARIAN

Everybody's Restaurant - University Plaza/Woodland Ave.

Not just for vegetarians this is a wonderful place to visit if you just get the urge to eat healthy. They have terrific salads and veggies as well as daily specials like burritos and an assortment of soups. If you go you might want to try the Boca Burger, their alternative to a hamburger.

Alfalfa - 557 S. Limestone St.

Although they do have some meat items on the menu, Alfalfa's is Lexington's original vegetarian restaurant and recently celebrated its 25th anniversary. Most of their main dishes come with Alfalfa's homemade bread and house salad (cabbage based and very good). Highly recommended is their Hoppin John and their scrumptious desserts.

GREASY SPOON

Tolly-Ho - 395 S. Limestone Street

This 24 hour restaurant is generally rated Lexington's best place for greasy food. Naturally they serve hamburgers and cheeseburgers and heaping plates full of fries. However, they also whip up some wonderful breakfast food including pancakes, hashbrowns and eggs. Take a break from your late night studies and head to Tolly-Ho

MEXICAN*Rincon Mexicano - 818 Euclid Ave.

Have a hankering for Refried Beans and Enchiladas? Go to Rincon for Mexican food that is mui sabroso. The atmosphere is good too... they even have Spanish language television on the T.V.'s over the bar.

PUB FOOD*Charlie Brown's - 816 Euclid Ave.

With its dark interior and roaring fireplace, Charlie Brown's would appear to be the perfect spot for a clandestine meeting. Go here not only for the savory sandwiches but, for the atmosphere as well. This reviewer takes note of the fact that the walls are lined with book shelves which is certainly a mark of distinction for any dining establishment.

Lynaugh's Irish Pub and Grill - 384 Woodland Ave.

For the hamburger lover Lynaugh's is a must. Their giant hamburger is called an O Round and is one of the best in town. They also serve other types of bar food like chicken sandwiches and a veggie sandwich. Lynaugh's is a terrific place to have a Guinness and hang out with friends after class.

CAJUN*Jozo's Bayou Gumbo - University Plaza/Woodland Ave.

Located next door to Lynaugh's, Jozo's is best described as New Orleans style fast food. They serve a variety of creole and cajun dishes including jambalaya, red beans and rice and etouffe. My favorite is the vegetarian red beans and rice to which I add one of Jozo's special hot sauces. If you can't make it to Nawlins but have a craven for Cajun be sure to check out to Jozo's.

THAI*Bangkok House - 275 Euclid Ave.

For a taste of the orient head to the Bangkok house located beneath Baskin Robbins on Euclid Ave. They have terrific service and wonderful food. Whether you like your pad thai, mild, medium or so hot your eyes water, they'll cook it to your specifications. They also have friendly fast service and the owners do all of the cooking and most of the serving.

HOME STYLE*Ramsey's Diner - 496 E. High Street

If you're feeling homesick for food like Mom cooks Ramsey's is sure to satisfy your stomach. Located in an old store front everything is home style and the menu features items such as meatloaf with a huge mound of mashed potatoes and fried catfish with fried green tomatoes (not for those watching their fat and cholesterol). The patio is open when the weather is warm and Ramsey's is a popular spot for the Chevy Chase, university and downtown crowd.

Law Library Retreat

On June 12 the members of the UK Law Library team met at the home of Dee Wood. Everyone had a good time as we gathered together to plan how we can make the library a better place for you our patrons.

We updated our strategic action plans (did you even know we had any?). No we don't just run around making it up as we go along...it takes work to run a library. Our main focus this year is, as always, to continue to improve our service. For instance, Goal 3 (A)(1) is to publicize our food and drink policy. We don't care if you partake of beverages and snacks in the library. But, remember your drinks should be in a permanent cup (not paper or Styrofoam) and if you want to eat please don't leave your mess behind.

We're also working on providing cross training with regard to our various job duties, (Goal 2(A)(6)). That is, we want to ensure that when one person is away there is someone else to help you in that particular area. Again, we strive for outstanding customer service.

So, while all of you were taking classes, working and learning how to be the next Johnnie Cochran or F. Lee Bailey we were here working on how to make the law library a better place for our faculty and students.

Let us know if there is something you think we could do better. Maybe we'll work on it at our next library retreat.
